I have decided to resume my journal after neglecting it for a good many months.

Charles Gulick and I spent the day sorting + classifying pottery in the museum. We finished the East Alley trays. There are more than 9000 sherds from the East Alley in the museum - not counting whole pots. The stratification is perfectly regular. One interesting point is that L-III sherds are very numerous + characteristic down to a floor level at a depth of 90. Below this floor there are no L-III sherds (or only a few trays) but L-II is characteristic.

The explanation of the rich deposit in East Alley I don't know. The stratification is right however. Mingan comes in very low - below L-II most of it -; + at the very bottom or back is U.F.

Thursday Nov. 2

This morning Charles & I went over to Gonia & measured the hill approximately. It is roughly 410. m long E-W. by ca 160. m wide
 at widest point. Irregular in shape.
 I made a rough sketch showing the location of the trenches. These pits have already been filled in.

From Gonia we went to Yiriza &
 measured that hill, too. Yiriza is ca 110.00 m E-W. by ca 78.00 N-S.

In the afternoon we went down to Korako & measured the amount of ground which the excavations make impossible of cultivation by Michali Fatis, the owner.
 According to my measurements we occupy ca 4.70 stremmata. I am willing to call it 5.00 " which at 10.00 dr. per str. = 50.00 dr. or our rental to Michali for 1916-1917

Charles & I plan to leave for Athens
 tomorrow. The plan is to climb Mt. Delphi
 next week.

At Korako in the evening we found
 ca $\frac{3}{4}$ of a goat Mycenaean monochor. black bowl in scarp of E. Hill, pit at south end. E.H. II I should think.

Friday Nov. 3

(7)

This morning I went over account
 a bit, talked over matters with the Director, & packed a few things into my suitcase.

In the afternoon Charles & I left
 by south for New Corinth where after I had got my hair cut we caught the 4 o'clock train at 5.00 P.M. for Athens.
 We got home ca 9.00 P.M. & went down town immediately for a late dinner.

Before I left Old C. there was an American mail. I had a nice letter from Susanne written from Haverock Point
 Sep 15 the day she was leaving for Providence.
 She called it a note to say she'd got my letter of Aug 4 from Old C. & says she will write another from Providence.

Saturday Nov. 4

I saw Wace this morning (had breakfast with him) & learned the conditions under which people connected with the British Legation are admitted to B.S. Hostel. The charge for ordinary rooms is 17/6 per week. Boarders take care of their laundry themselves.

Before lunch I called on White, the new secretary of our Legation who wants to get a room at the school. He is in bed with influenza. Seems a good sort of fellow & is easy to be taken into the school. I told him the difficulties due to unfinished state of east end & explained that we should be obliged to collect from him for temporary installations etc. He agreed to that & asked me to send a telegram to the Managing committee asking permission. I sent the cable to Prof White in the afternoon.

For tea Charles & I went to the Regent's Hall well there. Hunt Selous has given up the Delphi expedition however on account of the cold weather & great pain.

In the evening Charles & I went to the "Olympia" & heard an opera: "Méphistophélès" by Bizet. We thought it was very creditably done. Sabellio the Stalder sang Méphistophélès extremely well & with much spirit.

I sent Scott his check (to Rome).

I met Kerk on the street this afternoon. He has had new poetry from Trumpet at Mumbel. I am going to see it tomorrow.

Sunday Nov. 5

This morning Charles & I went to church where I indulged in daydreams instead of listening to Mr. Gardner's dull sermon. Colson read the lessons & got a little mixed up in one of them. He saw Mrs. Druppen & Betty & walked home with them.

In the afternoon there was tennis. There was mostly the same old crowd Mrs. Druppen (as a spectator) Dr. Rendels Sells etc. A new man, Brown, staying in the hostel played rather well. Afterwards tea at Wace's.

In the evening I wrote a letter to Mother.

I wrote a letter to Mrs. Sells thanking for the flower seeds she sent me.

I cashed 50/44 & my check at Nat. Bank. I saw Wace & departed the evening of 4/11. I saw Wace & departed the evening of 4/11. I saw Wace & departed the evening of 4/11.

Monday Nov. 6

I paid the library bill at Eleftheroudi. & Bath. This morning
having got money at the Bank.

Theophile the antiquity dealer has opened a new shop in the Synagma.
I stepped in for a moment & looked at some rings. Bought one tentatively for 100 dp. but accepted the price he wanted too quickly. For he immediately shifted ownership of the ring to a third person & said he would consult him.

I looked in at Old Orient too. He has a complex fine ring (from Meles in Anatolia) but one is 325. dp. & the other 250.00. A little too high for me.

Charles Gulick had his 16th birthday
today. Mrs. Dropper invited him & me
to dinner in the evening.

(11)

Thursday Nov. 7
Election Day in America.

I went to the Museum in the morning & saw Karo's pottery from Troyes (his year's dig). He had some nice ~~pieces~~ sherds. All of them might easily have come from Karako (East Hell)
as far as their character goes. There were
ca. 1 doz. sherds of Ephyraean - several good ones. (I got four of them to join together making a very finished which surpassed K. a bit. Also 2 other joins)

In the afternoon Charles & I went to Shore Lane where I bought a piece of embroidery (Myrs.) ^{from} Stachos. At Christodoulous I saw some very attractive rings which I acquired after some dickering for 650.00 dp. There are 4 of them. Two from Meles @ 225.00 @ 125.00 in pretty good condition. The 1 is almost as good as that for 325.00
at old Orient. The other two @ 150.00 & 100.00 are said to be Bochara (?). I plunged more than I ought in there but couldn't resist. I have to go back to get them for C. says he can't deliver.

In the evening I took Charles & the opera "Gioconda". (In honor of his birthday. Should have been yesterday but we were at the Droppers.) It was quite well done & we thoroughly enjoyed it. Very late so it finished after 7.30 AM.

Wednesday Nov. 8

St. Demetrius' Day. The Royalists are celebrating in Athens; the Venizelists in Salonica the 4th anniversary of the capture of Salonica from the Turks.

A rainy day. I spent morning planting the seeds Mrs. Sells sent me also some I brought from N.Y. Marieke brought me two letters one from Mother (Sep 25) & an awfully nice one from Susanne (Nov. Sep 18) She calls me Carl which pleases me tremendously. I'm glad I made the plunge too in my last letter & called her Susanne. She sent me a charming extract from the log of the good ship "Sunshine" written by her cousin. This is in answer to a letter of mine of last August when I was homesick and asked her to write me something about Maine.

According to the newspapers Hughes seems to have been elected President with a good majority

I wrote a letter to Mrs. Prentiss.

Thursday Nov. 9

This morning I went to the Bank & withdrew 650.00 dp. Then I proceeded to Shore Lane in a cab & fetched home the four megs I brought in Tuesday. I think they are worth the price tho' it may not be a wonderful bargain. Christedonler didn't seem overly pleased with the trade, however.

The newspapers today announce that the results of the elections at home are still in doubt. Hughes carried New York & Illinois but the Western States are going for Nelson

Charles & I went to the Opera again tonight & heard La Traviata. Not so well done as last time I heard it in September

Bjorn invaded our tennis court this afternoon with a party as usual. Charles & I got dragged into a couple of games

Friday Nov. 10

I wrote a letter to Suzanne today - in answer to the one that came from her on Wednesday.

I went to the Legation & had my passport renewed today. They were good enough to date it back to the day of expiration.

According to this morning's papers Wilson now leads in the election returns but the result is not definitely settled yet.

Saturday NOV. 11

The Director came home tonight. He called up & asked if we cared to go to the opera. We accepted with pleasure so Charles & I trotted down to the Olympia & heard Gioconda again. I liked it better than last time. The intermezzo is mighty good.

This afternoon I went to Bijou's for tea. It was a mixed crowd hardly a soul I knew of course no introductions. Some of the men were from the British fleet at Keratsini including the admiral (who played tennis with me on Thursday). On the way home I called on Mrs. Drippens for a few minutes.

The American election seems ~~still~~ to be a very close contest. Final results can not yet be given but there seems no doubt that Wilson has been re-elected.

Sunday Nov 12

Charles + I played tennis in the afternoon there was a fair sized crowd. Afterwards we went to Mrs Droppers for tea & from there we went with the Director & the Dinsmoors to the opera again. This time we saw Rispolito. The first time I've seen it. The cast was rather ordinary but it was well worth hearing.

Monday Nov. 13

Our trip to Mt Delphi is postponed for a couple of weeks so I plan to go back to Corinth tomorrow. I persuaded the Director to stay over in order to hear Mephistopheles tonight.

In the evening the Director the Dinsmoors + Charles + I went again to the Olympia & heard "Mephistopheles!" It was the timetic performance for Sabellio's the Italian bass. He sang extremely well. It is a queer sort of an opera - a series of loosely connected tableaux with some very fine music. I enjoyed it more than last time. The choruses in particular are fine it seems to me tho' of course the execution of them here was not very good.

Tuesday Nov 14.

This morning - a drizzly day - we took the 7 o'clock train for Corinth & got up to our quarters at Old Corinth before lunch.

Wangler is in bed with an attack of rheumatism.

I spend the drizzle afternoon mostly on accounts.

Toward evening we wandered down to the graves; & on the way home passed by the mill of Chelista. On the slope north of the hill we found a good many Myadacean shells mostly L.M. II but some L.M. II.

(19)

Wednesday Nov 15

I worked in pottery in the Annex, Charles helping me. We are sorting & counting the shells from East Alley pit.

I wrote a long letter to Weston mostly about my dig but also on the political situation.

Thanksgiving Day.

Charles & I had dinner this noon with the Dinsmoors. Hughes, correspondent of the N.Y. Evening Post & the Nation, was also there. It was an excellent dinner.

Wonderful mince-pie.

The city looks very warlike. The ultimatum of the French admiral demanding 10 batteries of mountain guns expires today & the Greek govt has refused to turn them over. It looks as if there will be trouble. Troops are being brought up & swarms of volunteers are being enrolled. The streets are full of recruits with & without uniforms all carrying army rifles. Most of them look like thugs & toughs of the worst description. No body knows what is likely to happen if the Admiral takes time for tea tomorrow.

Charles & I went to the Legation for tea.

Friday Dec 1

This was a highly exciting day. Admiral Du Fournet's ultimatum demanding the delivery of the ten batteries of mountain guns expired yesterday, the Greek Govt. having refused categorically to turn over the guns. Accordingly the Admiral announced he would take measures as he saw fit, beginning by sending detachments of Marines to occupy certain positions about Athens. He sent these during the night 2000 to 2500 men French British & Italian. The Greek government had agreed to allow the positions to be occupied; it is said the King himself gave a written promise that there would be no opposition. But the military authorities here had dispersed their troops suitably ^{in position} outnumbering the Allies and in the morning firing began. There was a small battle down below the Theatre in the quarter called "Rouf" where are barracks and artillery stores. A detachment of French had occupied the hill of Philopappos and Grey, too, were attacked. It seems that the sailors had ten rounds of blank cartridges and very little else; they were quite unprepared for a fight. The Admiral believed implicitly there would be no opposition. When their ammunition gave out the French on Philopappos after suffering some casualties had to surrender and were conducted to the Boulay. ⁽²⁹⁾ Charles & I went downtown to get lunch. There was some excitement but firing had died down. In the afternoon it began again chiefly in the region of the Zappeion where there was a considerable French force under the Admiral himself.

Charles & I played tennis in the afternoon & heard a good deal of desultory popping from the Zappeion district. About 4 PM. or a little later the Greeks mounted a field piece on the low hill NE of the stadium and began throwing shells into the Zappeion where the Admiral still was. Machine guns joined in the fight and rifle firing became pretty general. We went up to the terrace from where we had a good view of the field gun above the stadium. We saw it fire about a half dozen times at the Zappeion at point blank range. The machine gun fire was very steady and in the whole the situation looked pretty serious. The unsuspecting French admiral had been caught in a trap. At this point a French warship lying off Old Phaleron took a hand in the game. It fired a number of shells at intervals and then three at once followed by one or two more

(20) apparently aimed at the gun above the station. He could see the ship clearly - a rather small one - and the flashes of its guns. I saw no explosions of the shells, however. The field gun immediately became silent as well as the machine guns & rifle fire gradually stopped. I counted about 7 shots from the ship. A little later came two very heavy shells from the direction of Buraluis apparently. The reports were very violent & in one case I thought I heard the projectile explode. These must have been of large diameter. There were only two more at 6.15 & the other at 6.30.

After this there was complete silence, no firing whatever any more.

Charles & I had dinner at the school.

Wall called up from the ^{British} Legation & said the situation looked pretty bad. Rendel had been fired on & his house searched. Wallace asked me to take charge of the British school & protect it from looting if necessary. He also requested me to remove some of his valuable (chiefly embroideries) to our school. He thought he shouldn't be able to get home tonight.

So I gathered up his embroideries

(31) and plato brought them over. Most of the lights were out in the city & the unusual stillness was remarkable. Not a sound anywhere except a solitary barking dog. It seemed like a sort of reaction from the excitement of the day. At the same time it also appeared a bit ominous. There is no telling what the "epistates" might do. Thousands of them are loose about the city armed with guns & revolvers & apparently under no control. They feel they have won a victory against the French & are ready for any kind of devilry.

The whole business is a most awful mess. The French Admiral has made a colossal mistake which has resulted in a tremendous loss of prestige to the Allies in this country. It was perfectly evident yesterday that there would be trouble but the Admiral disregarded warnings & trusted in the promises of the King apparently. He had no business to send such a small force of men. When he should have seized Athens with the strong army & stayed away altogether & taken action with the fleet. So if he has suffered some loss in men & worst of all he has made the allied position here a different one. For he has done a good deal to unify the people's support of their King. He has made the King appear to be perfectly in the right on the eyes of a large part of the people.

There may be serious consequences of the episode today. According to the papers a temporary armistice or compromise has been arranged between the ministers of the Allies and the Greek Government. The Greeks agree to hand over 6 batteries instead of 10 and
the Allies to suppress all other demands.
This sounds doubtful.

Casualties. These are said to be approximately as follows: Allies ca 54 ~~to~~ killed & 95 wounded.
Greeks ca 25 killed & 50 wounded.

Evangelos the cook who yesterday begged
tactfully for permission to stay on in Athens
with Costa substituting for him in combat has changed his mind. When the shells began to fall he sent up word that he proposes to go to Corinto tomorrow morning. I cruelly told him to wait a day or two yet.

Later in the afternoon the reservists & troops began to attack Venizelists about town. A number of houses were riddled - especially the building of Mr. Nica Eddas in Kolokotroni St.

Saturday Dec. 2.

This has been a bad day. The French being heavily outnumbered and totally unprepared for fighting have withdrawn
their marine troops to their ships.
Their control over the post office &
telegraph office & railway has also gone. Bombing of French citizens are in a terrible funk & are packing up their goods for departure. The city has been practically in a state
of anarchy.

For now that the French have gone
the royalists with their army and their "epitakts" and their thugs have set about the work they really want to do - namely to clean up all the leading Venizelists in Athens. There is no hostility particularly toward the French & none whatever toward the British but the royalists have a passionate hatred for the Venizelists
and they are after Rivieris with a capital R. The Venizelists have no protection. The Admiral who promised to stand by them has gone back to his fleet and seems powerless to give them
any protection. It looks like the worst kind of execution. The Venizelists spread to go out in the streets and meet up
in their houses and the Royalists
are methodically besieging them
and capturing them one by one.
The leading Venizelists are then hauled off through the streets
with kicks and blows to some filthy prison. Intermittent shooting has gone on all day. The thugs and reservists gather about a Venizelist house and then in pretence that some one has fired at them from a window they let go a fusillade at the house. They smash all the windows & knock out numerous chunks of plaster from the walls until the inmates surrender. These unfortunate victims are badly maltreated and dragged off to the police station. Any Venizelist found with a weapon is considered guilty of high treason.

The streets are swarming with tough looking characters all heavily armed. They are conducting a regular man hunt all through the cities. Singly or in groups, some in uniforms, some with only a soldier's coat some with only a cap, they are stalking their game, with guns at their shoulder ready to fire just exactly like a hunter expecting to flush a covey of quail chickens the next instant. It is so funny that Charles & I couldn't help laughing when we went downtown for lunch, and yet it is too tragic to make one laugh. We were searched for guns on the way.

We walked down Bucharest St. to University St & then turned to the American Legation. This took us right through the siege of Venizelos' house which is opposite our Legation. We walked on without hesitation under the walls of the house. The sidewalk below it was covered with debris, fragments of plaster & glass knocked down from above. Across the street were fifty or more soldiers skulking behind trees & lamp posts just as thugs do in the movies, with their guns pointed at the windows of the house above our heads. There was no firing as we passed but a good many shots came soon after. I saw no return fire from the house; there's a half dozen Cretan palikaris - Venizelos' body guard - were besieged in it. There were many more soldiers up a down ~~Epiphania~~ Epiphania St. & more in University beyond our Legation. The Legation was guarded by a squad of Greek sailors. We stayed at the Legation for an hour or more till the siege ended. The Legation was much disturbed for the shots were uncomfortably close & there were threats of bringing up a field piece to shell the Cretan and of their quarters. Four machine guns were actually brought out from two in Epiphania St & two in University to bear on Venizelos' house but they were not used. For the Cretans finally surrendered and were marched off to the police station. Mr. Droppers was in a high state of indignation while the siege was going on & tried to get the Greek government to stop the business but with little success.

The only concession they would make was to promise to give him warning before they shelled Venizelos' house if they found themselves obliged to come up a full piece.

During the day perhaps thirty (or more) Venizelist houses were raided in this way and a large number of people arrested. The exact figures are pretty hard to learn. Some estimates of the number arrested are up in the hundreds.

In the afternoon there was a violent battle about the house of Benaki the Mayor of Athens. He & all people in his house were finally arrested, beaten & kicked & jailed on charge of high treason (attempted) murder etc. Unfortunately for the latter charge the venizelist they killed is still alive (with an exaggerated wound apparently).

There are no Venizelist papers today. All editors of such newspapers have been arrested & charged with high treason etc. Their offices have been searched & looted, presses smashed according to reports, & quantities of guns & said to have been found. The royalists seem determined to wipe out Venizelism from Athens if possible. There is a good deal of method evident in their madness, too. It looks to me as if the anarchy is pretty largely controlled and directed.

Kourouniotis came up late in the afternoon. He is very unhappy & had to talk to some one who is safe. So he thought of me (we met on the street yesterday). He was a good deal wrought up & had to express his feelings. We had a long talk - an hour or more & I gave him tea & showed him pictures of poverty from Corintz. He seemed to feel a good deal better when he left. He blames the French admiral for leaving the Venizelists in the lurch. - K. spent the morning cleaning up the Philopappos Hill gathered 6 bodies of French sailors he thinks it ridiculous that Venizelists fired first from their houses so do I. Not only ridiculous but incredible. The sweeping charge made by the Royalists that the Venizelists had a grand conspiracy to overthrow the government I think is absolutely false. But the Venizelists are in for a bad time. Gen. Korakas Venizeli represented here & managed his recruiting bureau is among those arrested.

Sunday Dec 3.

Today was very quiet. There was very little shooting. The streets have been cleared of armed men. There are no guns in evidence any more except that numerous armed patrols are marching about the streets. Thugs & irregulars have put aside their weapons in accordance with an order of the Psoopapxiros which went into effect last night at 9 o'clock. The shows that the authorities has the situation well in hand and allowed the anarchy because they wanted it. But they accomplished yesterday most of what they wished.

The city is beginning to look more nearly normal again. Stores have opened once more & some of the tram lines are running again.

The British & French residents are uneasy, however, & are departing for Panama when they go aboard ships. The "Vasilis Constantinos" has been chartered for them & some.

Cooper of the British naval mission & another Englishman of Macdonald's service who are both staying at the British Shore Hotel came in & asked permission to sleep in one school tonight. I told them they might. The Haslucks also came & asked for the same. When I hesitated a little wondering where I should put them Mrs. H. immediately decided

she would prefer to stay in the hostel & come over in case of an emergency to our school.
Cooper has finally also decided
they would not come tonight
unless there was actual danger.

Charles & I went to the Legation for tea. There were only a few people there including the Negrepoints. We walked home with Aunt Helen. She is much depressed.

The arrest of Venizelists & search of suspected Venizelist houses
went on merrily all day but there were only a few sporadic
quillade.

Monday Dec 4

Quiet & peaceful. Order is reestablished
& the town looks normal.
Venizelists are still being hunted down however & preliminary hearings are being held. Everybody is being detained on the flimsiest evidence & charges of high treason are entered on the slightest grounds. The Allies appear to be doing nothing save to get their own subjects away.
Many Venizelists have also fled
with their families to Keratsini
where they are taken aboard
French ships.

Charles & I went to tea at the Negrepoints. The Dismmoors
were there & a few others including Wace.

Wace came home with us & together
we lited & packed away with a box
all his embroidery. I have put the box in the App. Maki. Wace is positive but sure that Legation will depart & they are packing up their goods. But no one knows when they will go. There are rumors that the British cabinet has fallen in account of the mess here.

Wace asks us to take charge
of his school when he goes.
I agree but ask him to turn it over formally from his & our Legation to notify the Greek government.

Wangels left for Corinth at noon. I gave him a note to the Director suggesting that he return to Athens for a few days if possible.

The French school has telephoned asking whether the Director or I were here. I suppose they wish to turn over their school to us also.

Thursday Dec 5

43

Quiet.

The British & French residents are all leaving at the advice of their legations feeling sure there will be a break of diplomatic relations.

The pursuit of the Venizelists still goes on. All kinds of base calumnies are being printed about them in the papers and only Royalist newspapers continue to be published. They seem to rejoice in the developments of the war in Rumania. The Germans are pushing ahead with vigor and Bucharest is now threatened. This is a depressing month for the Allies.

Charles & I went to tea with the Dismans. Afterward we walked down to Shoe Lane where I bought a Pergamon rug in fine condition for 115.00.

At 11:30 P.M. the Director arrived from Corinth. The Patras train was delayed till 7:30 at Corinth while 4 or 5 troop trains (from Kalamata) passed on toward Athens. It is amazing that the French Admiral doesn't stop the transportation of troops from the Peloponnese.

I've started work in the garden laying out the new flower beds down along the east wall. Stephen's brother Basil is to come tomorrow to work. I'm having all the space 10. x ca 28.00 m. dug up & the earth sifted. All the pebbles etc are to go in the paths. I have planned three round beds in the ^{long} axis of the rectangle with cross paths reaching them.

Wednesday Dec 13

The most important news today is that Germany has officially proposed through the neutral embassy representing her in the belligerent countries that negotiations for peace be begun. She asserts she is willing to grant reasonable terms assuring liberty and independence for all parties & the maintenance of national honor. If the Entente ^{power} refuses to consider this proposal the whole responsibility for the continuation of the war will rest upon them says Germany. & the central powers will continue to fight with a clear conscience to a victorious end.

Germany has made a clever move it seems to me she has chosen the psychological moment for it. After her great victory in Roumania her peace proposals now will strengthen tremendously her internal position & neutral opinion is likely to be rather favorably disposed.

Thursday Dec 14

At 3.00 P.M. today the Entente Allies presented their note to Greece in the form of an ultimatum. They demand satisfaction for the events of Dec 1st and also demand that the Greek army in Thessaly be removed at once to the Peloponnese. Unless the transfer begins within 24 hours the Allies declare they will break off all diplomatic relations with Greece. Other demands are to be presented later when the army has been transferred & the blockade will not be raised until all have been fully carried out.

After presenting this ultimatum the Minister of the Entente with the staff of their Legation departed for Piræus on a transport ship. Wallace left also. Before going he turned over to me the keys of his school & an account of 875.00 with a list of servants' wages etc.

Have taken for me letters to be mailed to Norma, Prof. Wheeler, K. K. Smith.

The departure of the Entente Legation is causing the Greeks a good deal of anxiety. The evening papers consider the ultimatum pretty hard but seem to think the government will yield.

Friday Dec 15-

At noon today the Greek minister of Foreign Affairs went down to Piraeus handed over to the minister of the Entente aboard their ship the answer of the Greek government accepting without reservation the terms of their ultimatum. The transfer of troops to the Peloponnese is to begin immediately.

There is a feeling of relief that a crisis has been passed.

Two men working in the garden - Vasilis & the other.

The Director had a long conversation over the telephone with the Queen & later called on her at the palace. She asked to be invited to tea at the school next Tuesday or Wednesday.

(56) Sunday Dec 17

The Director had planned to go to Corinto today but the alarm clock failed to go off. So he missed the morning train. The noon train is taken off on account of the movement of troops in consequence of the ultimatum sent Thursday. Consequently the Director stayed here all day.

There is in the afternoon Charles & I went to the station after tea. I saw 50 roads who was yesterday released from detention no evidence of his treason having been found against him.

Monday Dec 18

(57)
The Director went to Corinto this morning by the fast train & returned by the last. He brought the book "Evangelists" with him back.

Charles & I with Mrs. Negroponte walked out to Karla this afternoon & dug up a good many bulbs for the garden - especially orchids.

came to tea. Mr. + Mrs. Droppers + White (the new secretary of our Legation) were here besides the Duchess + Charles + myself.

still sifting earth. Some of the beds are finally ready however + I'm beginning to plant a little.

This afternoon the Duchess + I went down to Piraeus + boarded the "Vasilis Constantinos" to visit some of our friends among the crowd of Britishers aboard. Capt. Sarel is commanding the ship. We tea'd with Mrs. Sarel + others + had a pleasant visit. Almost the whole British colony of Athens is aboard. - Capt. + Mrs. Sarel invited us to come for dinner next Sunday night. We accepted with pleasure.

Saturday Dec 23.

(61)

Two men at work in garden.
More than half of the new flower bed is finished. Sifting the manure a slow job & will be fairly costly but decidedly worth it.

Tennis this afternoon with same players as yesterday. We had some good games.

Sunday Dec 24

Tonight the Director + I went down to Bureau again to dine with Capt. + Mrs. Savel about the "Kuz' Constantine". A very pleasant evening. The Admiral (Palmer) + Silinski were in great form. There was a great amount of mistletoe about the ship & they set out to kiss every woman on board
the ship. They apparently succeeded
too. Sells came over from his ship
& I saw Wallace for a minute or two.
Bjorn was also about & was turned up.

Monday Dec 25
Christmas Day. Beautiful weather.
In the morning Charles & I wandered out to Karamanli & dug up a good many bulbs for the garden - chiefly cyclamen & orchids.

In the afternoon we all went to a jolly party at the Am. Legation

(We had a celebration at the school
(unless we count two quince pies)

I wrote a letter to Susanne.

There was a great gathering of people
today (Capt Davis says 40,000) at the field
of Ares to pronounce an old-fashioned curse on Venizelos. Led by the Metropolitan & numerous bishops everybody cursed Venizelos and cast the stone of anathema.
By evening there was a good sized pile
for Venizelos and smaller piles for Dauglio & Karamanliotes. It was all the doing of the League of Operatives. They propose to fence in the stone pile & set an inscription on the top first recording
the curse of Venizelos. Davis says the crowd was a good & quiet holiday crowd out for amusement. The event had its amusing side
but also a disgraceful one - namely the participation of the Church in a political affair.

Tuesday Dec 26
Beautiful weather still.
Two men at work in garden.
I am having two large olive trees
moved out of my new flower bed.

Wednesday Dec 27
Wonderful morning. Slightly doudy
in afternoon. I was in the garden
most of the day. 2 labourers finished transplanting one of the olive trees & began sifting earth.

The political situation seems to be more critical. There are rumors that the movement of troops to the Peloponnese has almost stopped pending the presentation of the second note from the Allies.
The Greek government has handed the Allies a vigorous communication asking for the second note at once.

Thursday Dec 28

This afternoon Hunt Helen, the Director, + I went to Pireas + had tea aboard the E 620 (Abaseli) with the Rendels + Wages. The Rendels have been transferred to Rome + leave early next week.

The feeling on board the ship seems pessimistic about the situation.

Garden: Two men work all day.

Friday Dec 29

Garden: two men labor all day.

White offered to include letters of ours in a legation pouch going tomorrow so I sent my letter to Susanna (a long one of Dec 11 + one of Dec 25) + one to Mother.

Saturday Dec 30.

~~The two~~ The Director went to tea with the crown prince this afternoon.

Today I got from Mr. Legroy (of the British Naval Mission Colson's Dept) 12 tins of Tobacco (1/4 lb tins) at 3.00 sp. per tin.

Sunday Dec 31

Tennis in the afternoon with White + Davis. Mrs. Dropper also came up + Jerry dug up some coins I had buried near the olive tree at the lower end of our new garden.

After tennis we went to the Legation for tea.

The Entente has finally presented the long expected supplementary note which is pretty severe. They demand the removal of the whole Greek army from what is necessary for police duty to the Peloponnese ② interdiction of all demonstrations + gathering of troops north of the Isthmus ③ reestablishment of allied controls - ④ release of all Greek pilots ⑤ removal of general of 1st Army corps (responsible for fighting of Dec 1st) ⑥ formal request for pardon from the Allies + the flag of the Power to be saluted. Use of the Larissa railway + road from the + to Paris will be used by Allies. Neutral zone guaranteed by Allies. Clocks will be turned till all hands are quiet.

(66) Monday Jan 1, 1916.

This morning at 9 Charles & I met Aunt Helen & Betty Dripps at the foot of Aristomenes Street & we all tramped out to Kaisariane from which we climbed Hymettus. We had lunch at the top at noon exactly. Beautiful day. This is what Aunt Helen calls beginning the year right.

We came down by way of Asteri & reached home at 4.30. We all had tea & Mrs Dripps also came up.

In the evening the Director gave a very pleasant dinner party: The Domemans, White, Davis, Waller, Charles & I. We had a very good dinner for blockade times.

2 men worked in the garden

The Greek papers are somewhat excited about the note of the Allies. All shout in unison that the demands cannot & must not be granted. It is better to starve a people's throats than to owe up the honor of the country.

The Director had a tea party for some of the younger members of the Royal family. Princess Irene & her small sister Catherine came. Paul was expected but failed to appear. Mrs Dripps with Betty & Jerry was also here. The Director dragged Charles & me into a foursome tennis game with Irene & Betty, which was too slow to be interesting.

Thursday Jan 4
 2 men in garden - Sifting peat in new flower beds finally finished. Work begun on transplanting of second olive tree.

Tennis as usual White, Davis, Charles & I.

The Director & I went to tea with the Philadelphian at the "International" Philadelphia wasn't there himself having been summoned by telegram to Tegea where the museum has been forced to the famous head of Melanto stolen.

Heavy rain this morning prevented us from going as planned on a trip to climb Penteli.

Greek Christmas today. Bad weather rain all day.

Monday Jan 8.

Heavy thunderstorm & rain this morning.

Mr. Ioannides (Prime Minister of Ministry of Education) with his wife & two children came to tea. The Director is cultivating him on account of the lor across the street which all want from the Monastery Pithaki.

Tonight at 11 P.M. The Greeks presented thru the Italian Minister an ultimatum demanding that Greece accept in full the terms of the note of Dec 31. 48 hours are given in which to accept + 15 days to carry out the terms. In the meantime the blockade will continue. The ultimatum gives guarantees that the British will not be allowed to attack Greece any more by sea or land.

Tuesday Jan 9

Beautiful weather. 2 men work in garden cutting down acacia tree near garden reservoir.

In the afternoon after tennis the Director Charles + I (with White of our legation) went to the Palace to get tea (after a long wait) with H.M. the Queen, her oldest daughter & her youngest son. It was an informal tea party for White & Charles to meet Prince Paul's invitation by telephone yesterday to the Director who is in high favor. He took me along as a member of the family. It was a pleasant occasion with no formality whatever.

We found there was a meeting of a Crown Council of former Prime Ministers at the Palace presided over by the King as a result of the ultimatum of last night. The session lasted from 2.30 till 7.00 P.M. The final decision as to the decision of the country was made I suppose at this meeting. As soon as the end of the session was announced the Queen said good bye to us & we departed. She seemed rather worried & tired (to ease to know the result of the meeting).

The newspapers tonight are conciliatory in tone & the general feeling seems to be that Greece will accept the ultimatum in full & unconditionally.

There was a mail out today (through the legation) I sent a letter to Mother & one to Mrs. Allison.

Wednesday Jan 10

The Greek government today presents its answer to the ultimatum of the Allies of Jan 5 - accepting in full all the terms. The answer is not short & categorical but wordy & somewhat disputative - apparently allowing for reservations.

2 men in garden

Thursday Jan 11

The acceptance of the note yesterday has caused general relief. There seems to be no popular indignation at the acceptance. On the contrary the people as far as I see are quite willing to accept all the terms to end the crisis. There is much eagerness to have the blockade raised. The blockade has not yet had very appreciable effects. There was a considerable supply of food in the country. The distribution of this is now in the hands of a commission which has brought about a certain amount of order. Bread cards are now in use. Bread is now made with a large proportion of corn meal which I find very good. All potatoes have been set aside as a reserve. Many kinds of provisions have gone down a little in price since the Commission took charge. Apparently the commission expects an early settlement & the end of the blockade for it is not taking radical measures at all.

British Control). They are very fast + beat Charles + me really
but we gave them a good fight for one set. My arm is pretty sore still.

(82)

Saturday March 17

This morning the Directors & I (George) went to Compt. on the early train (6:30)

A raw cold day. We proceeded to Hexamilia + walked from there to Old C. The old anemones are fine.

We took a walk part way up the Acro & met B. H. Parashen.

Spent sometime arranging policy etc for the committee meeting which is coming tomorrow.

We went to bed early to keep warm.

Sunday March 18

A wonderful clear day with a warm sun. The distant views are perfectly grand. All high mountains in sight as white with snow.

We expected the committee for lunch but they didn't appear till afternoon. Tzoumas, Keramopoulos, Velonakis + Karamphoridis of Philadelphia.

They elaborated the policy & status for Mungoullor and looked over the ground we proposed for appropriation. After tea we showed them the dig. They stayed to dinner which was a great success. George (83) did extremely well.

Monday March 19

This morning we ~~put up~~ ^{put up} heaps of garments, and rose back full 1 P.M. train to Athens. The committee also departed on the same train.

Political events: The most interesting locally is that the ministers of the Intente have finally come ashore again & taken up their residence in Athens. There is much at the British School Foreign Affairs. The Revolutionary Russia continues to be the great event of the stage. It looks as if the liberal democratic element has got the upper hand & the country will get a liberal constitution. The czar has resigned a ben putant. There is still a good deal of uncertainty about events in Russia.

Tuesday March 20

The relations between United States
+ Germany are growing more critical. Germany has again
sunk some American ships.

I went to Aunt Helen's for tea + gave her some memories from Comita.

Wednesday March 21

The Queen gave a tea party
this afternoon. Among the guests were the prime minister Mr. Cambra
his wife + daughter, Col. + Mrs. Pallas
Mr. + Mrs. Balanco, Mr. Dropper + others.
Serge Dropper last night. The Queen
+ I gave her a box each. She is still laid up with the wrapping
cough but getting better.

(25)

Thursday March 22

We are being sued by the Bakouli brothers of a Co. Comita
in connection with this land.
We have indicated for appropriation.
They charge the director with fraud + deceit.

Saturday March 24

The Director went to Comita this morning to see a lawyer + put on sue in his hands (Bakouli affair)
Early train 6:30

Charles + I went along to
St. Theodore + then got out
+ walked back to Helen's.
Beautiful road + beautiful
day. We dug loads of specimens
at Megara.

The Director coming back
from Comita joined us at Megara to ride to Helen's
but his sprocket promptly fell off + he had to trudge back to Megara + wait for the evening train here. Charles + I got to Helen's in good time
but feeling dreadfully sore
from the bicycling ride.

(46)

was a fine but the car I wouldn't have missed it.

Sunday March 25
We had planned to go to Alentrends today, but Charles
was laid up in bed all morning & I felt somewhat stiff & lame. So we postponed Alentrends till late
Tuesday afternoon

(47)

Monday March 26
We all went to tea at the Petrosochimo

A strike of electricians went into effect today & there is no
electric light. Also no trains and el. railway from Purmas

In the evening we had a small dinner by candlelight for the Kenneth Brown
. White also came to dinner.

Tuesday March 27
This afternoon another small
tea. Misses Andrews & Misses Alice came to see the house. The Dunsmores were also here to help entertain. It was a pleasant informal affair

Electric light came on again
tonight a temporary compromise
having been arranged. The Royalists
all took up their electrician's
strike as the result of another
hellish Venizelist plot.

(98)

Thursday March 29

Tonight we gave another small dinner. Walter Kittellwell Aunt Helen the Duncans & ourselves made up the party.

Friday March 30

With his bicycle repaired the Director went off to St Theodor this morning & wheeled back to Negara. Duncan went along with him. It was an expedition to use our mileage.

Sunday April 1

The long planned trip to Glenthermal came off today. Making the trip were the Director Duncan, White Charles & myself with George as baggage carrier & utility man. He took the 6:30 train to Glenora & started from there shortly after 8. White almost at once had an accident with his handle bus (breaking the permanent belt) which delayed us 1 hour & made riding difficult for him.

The road was generally pretty bad. We got to Glenthermal at 7:30 P.M. (about 19 kilometers) & after lunch a local inspector Gwells started over at 3:00 P.M. White got pretty tired toward evening & finally got a sprain near Madonna. But we all reached Glenora by 7:00 P.M. in time for the last train which luckily was at 1:40 hrs late. It should have gone at 5:40 we got home late & tired but satisfied with a good trip.

ACQUITTE

Some time ago I wrote you that the denouement of the great movie play was announced for early presentation. It came in a rather surprising form, not entirely as advertised, and it proved to be not really the denouement but merely another sensational episode in the long drama. Like most of the episodes which have gone before it seems likely to have serious consequences that will only complicate the plot. Still further and make the tragedy comedy go on indefinitely. Isn't it a pity that the people who are fighting in a good cause should be fated to make mistakes, which give their clever enemy every opportunity to profit?

The Allies have been laboring for a long time to safeguard their army in Macedonia from the possibility of a sudden attack on the part of the Greeks whom they could not trust. By patient urging and prodding they had induced the Greek government to make many concessions. They had secured a good anchorage for their fleet at Salonica. They had ^{appropriated} ~~then~~ over most of the Greek navy as surety. French censorship was established over the postal & telegraph services.

Control over the traffic on the Northern railway was in the hands of French officers. The police department in Athens & elsewhere was placed under French supervision. Admiral de Fournet demanded & secured the expulsion from Greece of the ministers of Germany Austria Bulgaria & Turkey along with practically all the subjects of those countries. The Greek government had yielded to the establishment of a neutral zone between Old Greece and New Greece a matter of vital importance to the Provisional government in Salonica. A grudging promise had been exacted from the Athenian authorities to allow all Bulgarians who wished to depart freely without hindrance to join the Anti-Bulgarian movement in Macedonia. And finally the King & the general staff had suddenly agreed to transfer the major part of the Greek army from Thessaly to the Peloponnese. In fact that was about all that remained necessary in order to insure absolutely the safety of the Allies in Macedonia as far as Greece is concerned.

Of course these promises were ^{made} ~~given~~ understood and no good faith was shown in fulfilling them. All possible ~~delays~~ ^{was made} grudgingly given they were grudgingly being carried out. All possible ⁱⁿ ~~delays~~ ⁱⁿ ~~made ^{made}. Good faith was conspicuously~~

lacking. But despite ~~of~~ all ~~present~~ delays ⁽²⁾
delatation + duplicity + secret opposition & petty friction the Allies were getting what they wanted. A beginning was actually made in the transportation of the army. Some of the equipment not already ^{been} removed & the troops were being started. A little more patience & modesty would probably have won the point & the position of the Allies ^{pieces} in the Balkans would have been safe from the South at least.

The Allies ~~had~~ ^{had} ~~been~~ ^{gained} all this in spite of hesitation, indecision, ^{reticence} and many mistakes
without seriously hurting the pride of the Greek people & without alienating their sympathy for the Entente. They were more or less indifferent for they knew the Allies had justification for their demands. Only the court circles and the old line politicians with the ^{Germanophile} General Staff
of the army were bitterly annoyed and as
openly hostile as they dared.

At this point Admiral de Fournet presented a new demand which soon took the form of an ultimatum.
It was a most unlucky inspiration.

I don't know how he came to do it. Very likely his patience has become utterly exhausted by the duplicity + delay of the Greek government in carrying out its promises. He wanted assurances of good faith, but he failed to give convincing arguments for the justice of his new demand. He ordered that Greece within a short time limit should turn over to the Allies 10 batteries of mountain guns with a good ^{quantity} of munitions and I believe ^{these were just in use for transport along the military supply-lines} a good ^{number} of them in an exchange of notes he was worsted in argument by the Greek government. His presentation of the case was much weaker than it need have been. The latter now seemed for the first time an issue in which they could count on popular support. The Admiral had created a situation in which the King's party at least appeared to be in the right. The army and the users responding to agitation declared they would not give up the guns and popular feeling ^{count that of being united} sympathized ^{and} melted into them. The units controlling the government ^{spurred} perceived the situation + seized their opportunity. A categorical

3
The situation in 1853 when the ultimatum came on 21
refusal was sent to the Admiral. In the meantime an unofficial call for volunteers
was issued and large numbers of reservists were enrolled. Regular troops also began to be brought in from the country. So came the day of the expiration of the ultimatum. There was a good deal of excitement and rumor was thick as to the measures which the Admiral might take. It seemed rather ^{probable} that there would be trouble
if ~~the~~ ^{he} Admiral attempted to seize the guns by force. The streets were crowded with reservists all carrying rifles, some in uniform some with only a military coat or a cap. They were the "toughest"
looking crowd of men I have ever seen in Athens.
Many of them looked like gunmen imported for the purpose of causing trouble. Such characters have been used unfortunately by both parties in Greece
during the past year. They were out for trouble this time, too.

Admiral du Fournet informed the government that he proposed to send detachments ashore not to seize Athens but to occupy certain positions & maintain order & ~~protect the city~~ he assumed the responsibility that he would protect them. The government agreed to allow the occupation of the positions & I have heard the King himself gave without ^{guarantee} assurance that no opposition would be made.

Trusting in the King's word the Admiral made no preparations for a fight. Accordingly early in the morning of Dec 15th he sent ^{out} detachments amounting to about 1500 men with instructions to occupy peaceably the points indicated. They had no sound of blow cartidge, ^{except} a very little fire ammunition ^{according to the official version}. When they had reached the places assigned to them they found themselves confronted by far superior Greek forces well armed and ready for fight.
Firing soon began. The Greeks assert that the French fired first; but a consideration of the character & preparation of each side makes that improbable. I think there is not the slightest ^{probability} doubt that the Greeks ^{fired first}. At many places in the course of the day small battles were fought in various places. One was below the Theater near the railway line. Another was in the hill of Philipappis; & thus at the Zappion
& there were small skirmishes at the French School. The peaceful intentions of the French Admiral are admitted even by the Greeks. For he himself had unobtrusively accompanied the detachment besieged in the Zappion.

The warriors in Philipappis hill suffered some casualties and a 5000 many were taken prisoners
when their ammunition gave out. The siege of the Zappier continued all day & the fighting ⁽⁴⁾ grew rather lively in the afternoon. Machine guns joined in the fight & rifle fire became pretty brisk.

The Greeks finally mounted a field piece on the hill above the stadium & began to throw shells into the Zappier at point blank range. Charles & I had a good view of this from our terrace. We saw at least a half dozen shots discharged from the gun & we thought the situation looked ~~pretty~~ serious.

At this point ^{however} a turret warship lying off Old Phaleron took a hand in the fighting and opened up with a 4 inch gun at the hill where the field piece stood. ~~Two~~ Seven or eight rounds were enough to silence the field gun, and
the machine guns & rifles likewise ^{stopped} ~~put~~ out.
sputtering. We could see the ship clearly - a rather small one - and the flashes; but we saw no effluvia of shells that we thought we heard a fragment come up in this direction (it made a ~~small~~ hole in the roof of a house across the street from the Dromos). A few minutes later there were two more heavy ^{shells} projectiles from
the fleet & then complete silence no more ~~was~~ whatever. Even the gun muzzles ~~from~~ ^{were} the fleet.

During the afternoon the Ministers of the Entente had a conference with the King and a temporary agreement was reached. The Minister ~~convinced~~ ^{pleaded} to accept 6 battalions instead of 10 & the King promised there would be no further attacks. ~~The~~ ^{Some} ~~arrangements~~ ^{arrangements} were arranged. The casualties of the day are said to have been about 45-killed & 95-wounded for the Allies no-killed & about 45-wounded for the Greeks.

On the course of the night & the next morning the Allied forces were all withdrawn to their ships ~~they~~ ^{the} ~~whole~~ ^{whole} ~~affair~~ ^{affair} ~~is~~ ^{is} ~~done~~ ^{done} for them. They have suffered a tremendous loss of prestige & their control over the post office & the railways & police has also gone. Worst of all they have put the King & his party in the worst light in the eyes of the people and done much to unify public opinion in support of him. Equally bad is the desertion of the Venizelists who are left without protection.

While the fighting was going on about the Zapparoni rusevists & gunmen began to attack Venizelists about town. A number of houses were besieged & riddled with bullets. On the following day (Dec 2nd) after the Allies had departed the royalists with their ^{infantry} army their reserves and their gunmen set about the work they really wanted to do namely to seize all the leading Venizelists inflict as much damage as possible on them & their property and ~~break up~~ ^{destroy} the Venizelist party. ~~There was~~ ^{Their} hostility ~~against~~ ^{toward} the Bandolier was evident and almost none toward the French, but passionate hatred for Venizelos & his supporters. The royalists were after revenge with a capital R & they got it. First they arrested all the editors of ^{the} Venizelist newspapers, sacked their offices and according to report smashed the presses. (We have had ~~nothing~~ ^{nothing} but royalist papers since.) Then they ~~looted~~ ^{scattered} ~~meat~~ ^{everywhere} through the city besieging the houses of the proscribed Venizelists. This was a good deal of chaos. Occasionally there would be a half hour of quiet, then fusillades would burst out right and left and guns would be popping intermittently for a long time. The usual method was this. A large number of recruits gathered about a suspected house. On the pretence that shots were fired at them from a window they would all blaze away. Luckily they were ~~chiefly~~ ^{chiefly} poor workmen in

in most cases the walls appeared of a window
suffered as much damage as the window itself.
~~Eventually~~ ^{Eventually} giving the people inside the house would surrender. After being sufficiently beaten and kicked they were dragged off to the police station
sometimes in a pitiable condition. This procedure
was used in thirty or forty cases perhaps more.
The city was really in a state of anarchy
the streets were swarming with rough looking characters all heavily armed.
They were ^{extremely} a regular man hunt through
the city. singly and in groups some with uniforms
some without they stalked their game with guns
at their shoulders ready to fire just like a hunter who expects to flush a covey of quail
at the next step. It looked so funny that I couldn't help laughing + yet it was too tragic
to make one laugh.

Charles + I walked past Vermyle's house as the siege
was going on + watched it later from our location
across the street. The house was held by six Cuban patriots. Vermyle's own bodyguard and the gun men were out for their ^{ordinary shells were used} blood. After machine guns were brought to bear on the house
+ threats were made to shell it with a field piece the Cubans finally surrendered.

6
were marched off to jail. - Even some of the best citizens of Athens are attached. The mayor himself did not escape; his house was shot up and he was brutally mistreated & hauled away to a police station
because he happened to be a Venizelist. This sort of thing went on ~~all~~ ^{one or two} days. It was anarchy but well organized anarchy; for at a definite hour it all ~~stopped~~ ^{came to an end} and the revolutionists gave up their guns.
The next morning no armed men were to be seen in the streets save numerous patrols of ^{regular} soldiers under regular officers. Shooting stopped & comparative order was restored. But the pursuit of the Venizelists has continued ever since. Every day
they are arrested in large numbers & the royalist
newspapers ~~publicly~~ ^{publicly} announce ~~their detention~~ ^{their detention} ~~looked up in the most filthy prisons.~~ ^{that they are} The plumiest evidence is eagerly accepted against any follower of Venizelos.
Palpable lies of the worst description are joyfully hailed as unimpeachable ~~testimony~~ ^{facts}. Witnesses whom no sensible person would suspect or hear are welcomed with pleasure
and on their perjured testimony men of high reputation are seized. At first arrests were chiefly limited to active members of the Liberal party, but now the Bakircian are having their names and any

Venizelist who holds a public office is subject to proscription. His position must be vacated for some faithful ward heeler of the royalist party. Private judges ^{may} also be satisfied. A sweeping charge is made that the Venizelists ^{in conjunction with the French} had formed a revolutionary conspiracy to dethrone the King & overturn the lawful government. ^{Of course} ~~at first there existed some accused of having fired~~

~~from their windows at Greek troops & royalists.~~
Houses have been ransacked for evidence, especially in the form of documents and arms. Newspapers proclaim triumphantly that 30,000 rifles have been confiscated & a large house is described as ^{ventilated} an arsenal; but the official list (to which the government does not give much publicity) can only claim 213 guns - a ^{disproportionately} small ^{supply} for an organized & desperate revolution. Incriminatory letters have ^{also} been disappointingly lacking in spite of persistent search; ~~but~~ ^{at least} that want ~~to~~ had to be ~~filled~~ ^{filled} by fugeis. In fact the whole case against the alleged ~~revolutionary~~ widespread conspiracy has suffered a noisome collapse. There was no conspiracy and ~~of course~~ naturally there is no evidence. ^{Nevertheless} the royalists ~~cannot~~ believe everything in the heat of their passion. They seem to have gone completely mad. Against all ~~thought~~ ^{thought} arrested are arranged ^{in a charge} of high treason, attempted murder or ~~murder~~ ^{murder} ~~in~~ ^{of} ~~the~~ ^{the} ~~King~~ ^{King} or all three together. Genie Tsarouchis ^{occasionally} ~~is~~ ^{is} ~~one~~ ^{one} ~~of~~ ^{of} ~~the~~ ^{the} ~~best~~ ^{best} ~~examples~~ ^{examples}. There is for example Mr. Mezarakis the permanent Director of the Ministry of Economics

a well known man of standing in Athens. ~~His~~ ~~book~~ is an ardent Venizelist; though he was naturally suspect. After being arrested once & ~~badly~~ ~~frustrated~~
he was released for want of evidence, and he has been arrested again & is charged with high treason,
for night, stealing a typewriter! ~~Aside from~~
~~that~~ ~~he~~ ~~is~~ ~~not~~ ~~an~~ ~~aidant~~ ~~Venizelist~~
^{having} ~~that~~ ~~he~~ ~~is~~ ~~not~~ ~~an~~ ~~aidant~~ ~~Venizelist~~
~~he~~ ~~himself~~ ~~held~~ ~~a~~ ~~5000~~ ~~franc~~ ~~position~~. ~~Internal~~
~~The~~ ~~most~~ ~~disturbing~~ ~~element~~ ~~of~~ ~~the~~ ~~administration~~ as it appears to me who are friends of Greece is that the courts ~~appear~~ ~~to~~ ~~be~~ ~~under~~ ~~the~~ ~~influence~~ of politics. The administration of justice is not hopelessly impartial. A few officials have tried faithfully to maintain their independence but the politicians
soon had them transferred to ~~undesirable~~ ~~places~~ in the provinces & they have been superseded by men who would do what the politicians wish.
In fact the events of the past few days
have completely ~~overthrown~~ ~~the~~ ~~good~~ ~~effects~~ ~~of~~ ~~the~~ reforms brought about by the revolution of the Military League in 1908. The country has gone a long step backward. & the bright prospects that grew out of Venizel's able administration have ended in untimely and bitter disaster. Greece is again in the hands of unscrupulous political demagogues abroad.

306 ^{have as their} principle ^{the independence} of personal ambition. His brief period of preparation & progress is over

The Foreign

~~As regards negotiations~~ The situation is one of complete uncertainty. An ultimatum from ~~England~~ France is ~~very~~ expected at any moment & there is no doubt that the terms will be heavy. The ^{power behind the} Government will likely to be disposed to yield everything save one point: they will not give up their chance ^{to wait for} revenge on the Venizelists. But this is a matter which touches the honor of the Allies. ~~France~~ They can't abandon the Venizelists to their fate without ^{making themselves} guilty of the worst form of treachery & ingratitude. Consequently no one knows what may happen. Rumors of war ⁱⁿ bombardment & war are plentiful. In the meantime the Allies have begun a strict blockade & Greece is cut off from the outside world. (But we still have the German airless!) - No matter what turn events may take the future of Greece looks pretty dismal.

in general

(8)

The attitude of the Greek people
has shown ^{surprisingly} little change
^{not in many} ³ ^{means that in this country}
In a few days they were somewhat aroused from their apathy & felt rather closely concerned with what was happening.
But now it looks to me they are gliding
back to their former status of spectators
interested & uneasy but not vitally affected (they may feel the effects of the blockade soon). For them the movieplay is still going on and they hope it may have a good ending.
